2020 CALENDAR

Clare Boothe Luce, an extraordinary woman, proudly fought for freedom and dedicated her life to preserving the values established by our Founding Fathers. In this 2020 issue of our Great American Conservative Women calendar, we celebrate twelve timeless women who have led, and will continue to lead, our country forward and, like Clare Boothe Luce, remain role models for young women.

CONSERVATIVE WOMEN

DEAR FRIENDS,

Just as our Constitution and Declaration of Independence are lasting treasures of our nation's history, so are many of America's great female leaders from our past, present, and into our future. This 2020 Great American Conservative Women calendar honors twelve conservative women who have impacted our country in profound ways. However, students rarely hear their names in school and in popular culture.

The Left is erasing history and important conservative women, like Clare Boothe Luce, from textbooks and curricula. Universities across the country are removing works of art of our Founding Fathers and prominent leaders, as well as statues of freedom fighters who had risked their lives for America's promises.

The Center for Conservative Women celebrates remarkable women and we showcase them in our annual Great American Conservative Women calendar. We recognize strong conservative female role models, like Michelle Malkin and Nikki Haley, who are pro-America, pro-family, pro-free enterprise and entrepreneurship, and are pro-national defense.

Millions of young women are struggling to resist leftism, feminism, and liberalism at their colleges and in the media. They crave the opportunity to hear powerful female patriots who confidently refute what the Left tells them to believe. The Center for Conservative Women is an organization that understands the power of strong female mentorship and serves as a resource for young college women.

Like Clare Boothe Luce and other extraordinary women in our nation's history, these twelve women are timeless, and their hard work and influence will be admired by young women for years to come.

Sincerely,

President,

BETSY DEVOS

"Each of us was born in the image and likeness of God, endowed with dignity that no man and no government could ever take from us. We all need the freedom to discover and develop our abilities and aspirations to achieve our fullest potential for ourselves, our families, our communities, and for our country.

America is the most prosperous nation on the face of the earth, and it's also the most generous. But that strong tradition isn't just passed along from generation to generation in the blood stream. It's taught. It's learned. It's shared. So, study freedom. Learn it. And, [more] importantly, protect it. "

Elisabeth "Betsy" DeVos is the U.S. Secretary of Education, and is a proven leader, innovator, and advocate. Active in politics for more than 35 years, Secretary DeVos was chairwoman of the Michigan Republican Party four times, and she has served in numerous leadership roles with campaigns, party organizations, and political action committees. Today, her political efforts are focused on advancing educational choices. She is the former chair of both the American Federation for Children and The Philanthropy Roundtable board of directors and served on a number of other national and local boards including ArtPrize, American Enterprise Institute, Foundation for Excellence in Education, and the DeVos Institution for Arts Management at the University of Maryland. Secretary DeVos is married to entrepreneur, philanthropist, and community activist Dick DeVos, and together they have four children and five grandchildren.

"Being a conservative woman requires vigilance. Daily we're confronted by the voices of people in power insisting that conservatism and 'real' womanhood are mutually exclusive. And while the fight against such manipulation can be exhausting, it's worth it. The conservative movement in America depends on the next generation of women standing firm in the face of belittlement and bullying. And if anyone can handle it, it's us."

Allie Stuckey is the host of the podcast Relatable where she breaks down the latest in culture, news, and politics from a Christian, conservative perspective. She is a frequent guest on Fox News, writer, and the author of a book to be released in the spring of 2020. In 2015, Allie began speaking to college sororities about the importance of voting. What started out as a hobby soon turned into a full-time career, with her blog The Conservative Millennial launching her into the political media sphere. Today, in addition to podcasting, writing, and making the occasional satirical video, Allie travels to college campuses to speak to students about the importance of conservative values. She is a highly requested campus speaker through the Center for Conservative Women, and often speaks at our conferences.

"My advice to young women is to pray about every opportunity before they say yes. We live in the freest nation on earth for women. More than likely you will have way more opportunities and choices than not. So, make sure you lift those to Jesus. He loves you and will show you the way."

"Also, don't let progressive women bully you. Be proud of the fact that you are pro-life, pro-gun, and pro-woman and that many feminist greats before you had those same values as well."

"Our values empower us as women, they don't limit us. Be bold enough to stand for those principles. Other women are searching for brave women like you to stand up and speak out. Be that woman."

Antonia Okafor is a media personality, Agun rights activist, the founder and CEO of EmPOWERed, a national, student organization that advocates for the Second Amendment rights of high school and college women. She regularly speaks to students on college campuses and at the Center for Conservative Women's conferences, and teaches young women about female empowerment and gun ownership. "My best advice is to always trust your gut. It will never fail you. If you pause or second guess yourself, push through the fear. When you do, you will surprise yourself with just how strong you are."

"Remember to pick and choose your battles. And no matter what you do, be great at it, and make sure people remember you for it."

"Most importantly, have fun!"

Nikki R. Haley is the former United States Permanent Representative to the United Nations. She served as a member of President Trump's Cabinet and the National Security Council. Prior to becoming the twenty-ninth U.S. Permanent Representative to the United Nations, Ambassador Haley was elected in 2010 as the first female and first minority Governor of South Carolina. Reelected in 2014, she served as Governor until confirmed by the U.S. Senate as the U.S. Permanent Representative to the United Nations in January of 2017. Born in Bamberg, South Carolina, she is the daughter of Indian immigrants and a proud graduate of Clemson University. In her first job, Ambassador Haley kept the books for her family's clothing store at the age of 13. Ambassador Haley and her husband, Michael, have two children.

KRISTAN HAWKINS

"I know how the challenges of being a pro-life, conservative woman in our culture requires so much more of me -- of us -- every day. However, the toll it can take on your life is worth it as I've been blessed to meet some of the children who have been spared a violent death through abortion, all because I followed my convictions."

Our pro-life message is one of hope and love that literally saves lives. It is us, not Planned Parenthood and the abortion lobby, who empower women to courageously choose life. No matter the obstacle in front of you, never give up and never silence your voice as you will never know who is watching and listening or who might never have been at all without your unique contribution to the world."

Kristan Hawkins is a Christian, wife, mother, grassroots activist, author, speaker, and a human rights advocate. President of Students for Life of America, she was recruited in 2006 to launch Students for Life of America's full-time operation. A published author, Kristan wrote Courageous: Students Abolishing Abortion in this Lifetime. She has interviewed on Fox News, CNN, MSNBC, the Today Show, CBS, ABC, and HBO and regularly speaks at pro-life conventions and events across the United States including leading college campuses such as Yale, Harvard, and UC-Berkeley. Her proudest accomplishment is being a wife to her high school sweetheart (Jonathan), raising her four children, and, in her free time, raising awareness for cystic fibrosis, a disease shared by two of her children. Kristan is a frequent speaker for the Center for Conservative Women and a favorite among college women.

MARSHA BLACKBURN

"Living and working in the world as a conservative woman is a challenge, but you are equal to it. Do not ever let anyone convince you that a problem is too complicated, too dense, too divisive for you to solve."

"You are surrounded by infinite opportunity, and a sisterhood of strong, successful, fiercely independent women. Lean on them, and take advantage of their experience. Ask questions. Speak up. Push back. Learn. Grow together."

"Most importantly, be good to one another. The strongest coalitions are the ones we build on a foundation of friendship, respect, and a common vision. Let that vision be your light, and let the women around you help you find your way."

Marsha Blackburn was elected to the U.S. Senate in 2018, and is currently serving her first term representing the state of Tennessee. Before her election to the Senate, Marsha represented Tennessee's 7th Congressional District. In 2016, the Center for Conservative Women awarded her the Woman of the Year award, and she most recently spoke at the Center's Western Women's Summit in Santa Barbara, California. Marsha began her career in public service in 1995 when she was named executive director of the Tennessee Film, Entertainment, and Music Commission. In 1998, she was elected to the Tennessee State Senate. In the state legislature, she earned a reputation for fiscal responsibility and government accountability by identifying waste and offering realistic solutions to Tennessee's budget challenges. Marsha is a member of numerous charitable organizations and is an active member of her church, Christ Presbyterian. Marsha and her husband, Chuck, live in Williamson County, Tennessee. They have two children and two grandsons.

"In Hollywood and journalism, there's this idea of what it means to be a woman. Yet, the values depicted of women are not diverse and often account for only one side of the conversation. It's frustrating for women who don't share the same sort of limited groupthink on liberal ideology to rise. Because of this, we need to speak up more. People need to know that we are not okay being lumped into the same group the Left tries to shove us into. Conservatives champion individuality – the real secret to women's empowerment – and we need to share this."

"When I was in grade school in the 1970s, we celebrated America's melting pot. Today, that is considered offensive and kids are instead taught that we are a 'salad bowl.' Even as young as middle school, students are encouraged to join clubs defined by race and sexual orientation, instead of uniting around common hobbies and interests. My mother is an immigrant who felt it was her duty to learn English and assimilate in her new country. Today, assimilation is considered a bad, racist word. We know we are failing to instill our youth with basic American values when college students are the demographic most ambivalent about protecting the right to freedom of speech."

Rachel is a published author, communications consultant, and television personality specializing in political analysis, culture, and parenting. She is a Fox News and Fox Business contributor and a recurring guest host on "Fox & Friends" and "Outnumbered." Her advocacy work has included serving as the national spokesperson for The LIBRE Initiative, a non-profit group that advocates for the economic empowerment of Hispanics through limited government, entrepreneurship, and self-reliance. Rachel's debut children's book Paloma Wants to be Lady Freedom was released in September 2019 by Regnery Publishing. It is a story inspired by real life events where the young girl learns about patriotism, courage, and her immigrant father's journey to citizenship. In 2018, the Center for Conservative Women awarded her the Woman of the Year award, and she often speaks at the Center for Conservative Women events and conferences. Rachel lives in Wisconsin with her husband, Congressman Sean Duffy [R-WI], and her nine children.

READ ALL ABOUT IT

After nearly two years of renovation planning, our construction crew finally broke ground in 2019 on our new office and Center for Conservative Women classroom! We are close to completion and are expecting to host a grand opening in 2020.

In our many conversations with young student activists, they often comment on the many women's studies centers on their campuses where militant feminists meet and strategize on how to promote the crazy radical Leftist and socialist visions of AOC, Ilhan Omar, Rashida Tlaib, Nancy Pelosi, and Hillary Clinton.

Our new Center for Conservative Women

The construction crew broke through the wall to the neighboring suite where our Center for Conservative Women classroom will be located will be a space to effectively mentor young conservative women leaders now and for the future. It will include an inspiring museum with a Conservative Women's Hall of Fame, precious artifacts from our namesake Clare Boothe Luce's life, an incredible library of the best conservative books, a Mother's Wall of Honor, and important items from other conservative leaders.

We are thankful for the generous support for our programs that have led us to expand our space for more growth. Young women's lives are impacted and conservative women leaders are promoted and their achievements celebrated, like our unique "Woman of the Year" events and Conservative Women's Summits, which can now be held on our premises.

Just like the women featured in our calendar and our namesake Clare Boothe Luce, our new Center for Conservative Women will be timeless, and a symbol of encouragement for young conservative women in the future.

Staff by Michelle's old office the week renovations started

Our construction and design crew coordinating blueprints and setting the construction schedule

Flooring was installed in our hallway connecting the entrance to the board room and kitchen

Our new Center for Conservative Women classroom for future lectures, summits, and other events

Featured are some of the speakers and students we have recently hosted at our regional summits, Conservative Women's Network mentoring luncheons, Afternoon with an Author receptions, or campus lectures. The speakers are popular among our young conservative women. The students pictured are some of our conservative women leaders on campuses across the country.

SPEAKERS & STUDENTS

Bay Buchanan shares some words of advice to young women at our Capitol Hill Summit in June 2019.

Romina Boccia, Vanessa Brown Calder, Rachel Greszler, and Patrice Lee Onwuka dispel the myth of the gender wage gap at our Conservative Women's Network lunch in May 2019.

Student leaders "cheers" their ice cream cones at our Conservative Women's Network reception at the Heritage Foundation in July 2019.

Summer Fellows Danielle, Ellie, Makenna, and Juliet with authors Mollie Hemingway and Carrie Severino after the release of their new book, "Justice on Trial" in July 2019.

Michelle Malkin discusses her new book, "Open Borders Inc" and the immigration crisis with students from the University of Pennsylvania in September 2019.
